Capital: Salem Time: GMT - 8

Background: Oregon entered the Union on February 14, 1859, as the 33rd state. Encompassing a land area of great topographical diversity and scenic beauty, it has traditionally had an economy based on agriculture and the exploitation of its vast forests. In the early 1990s manufacturing and service industries were also very important. The origin of the state name is uncertain. It may, however, be derived from the French ouragan, meaning "hurricane", a name formerly applied to the Columbia River. Oregon is also known as the "Beaver State". Its major cities are Salem (the capital), Portland, Eugene, Gresham, Beaverton, and Medford.

Population: According to the 1990 census, Oregon had 2,842,321 inhabitants, an increase of 7.9 per cent over 1980. The estimated population for 1997 was 3,243,487. In 1990 the average population density was 11 people per sq km (29 per sq mi). Whites made up 92.8 per cent of the population and blacks 1.6 per cent; additional population groups included some 37,443 Native Americans, 13,652 people of Chinese origin, 11,796 people of Japanese ancestry, 9,088 people of Vietnamese background, 8,668 people of Korean descent, 7,411 people of Filipino origin, and 3,508 Asian Indians. Approximately 112,700 Oregon residents claimed Latino ancestry. Native American groups included the Klamath, Wasco, Wallawalla, Paiute, Umatilla, and Cayuse.

Location: Oregon, one of the Pacific coast states of the United States, bordered on the north by Washington; on the east by Idaho; on the south by Nevada and California; and on the west by the Pacific Ocean. The Columbia River forms much of the northern boundary.

Area: Oregon has an area of 251,470 sq km (97,093 sq mi); 52.3 per cent of the land area is owned by the federal government. The state is roughly rectangular in shape, and its extreme dimensions are 476 km (295 mi) from north to south and 669 km (416 mi) from east to west. Elevations range from sea level to 3,426 m (11,239 ft) at the top of Mount Hood. The approximate mean elevation is 1,006 m (3,300 ft). Oregon's coastline along the Pacific Ocean is 476 km (296 mi) long.

Industries: Although gold was discovered near Jacksonville in the 19th century, Oregon lacks the rich mineral resources of neighbouring California, Nevada, and Idaho. The mining industry accounts for less than 1 per cent of the annual gross state product. Principal mineral products are sand, gravel, and limestone. Other minerals found include nickel, clay, soapstone, diatomite, and pumice.

Farming accounts for 3 per cent of the annual gross state product. Beef cattle are the leading livestock product, although sheep, pigs, and poultry are also raised. Leading crops are wheat, potatoes, barley, oats, vegetables, sugar beet, pears, cherries, strawberries, beans, peaches, plums, and nuts.

Oregon is the leading state in its output of forestry, supplying about 20 per cent of the nation's saw timber and one sixth of all plywood manufactured in the United States. Logging occurs in almost every county of the state but is concentrated in the Cascade Range.

The fishing industry brings in an annual catch worth about $79 million. Chinook, coho (silver), and other varieties of salmon are among the most valuable species caught; rockfish, sablefish, and shrimp are also important.

Manufacturing enterprises account for 20 per cent of the annual gross state product. Leading industries are timber, wood and paper products, processed food, industrial machinery, precision instruments, electronic equipment, printed materials, and transport equipment.
