Background: South Dakota entered the Union on November 2, 1889, as the 40th state. With fertile soils and extensive grazing lands, South Dakota has always had an economy dominated by farming and ranching. In the early 1990s tourism and other services were of increasing importance to the state; visitors are attracted by the great scenic landscapes and caverns of the Black Hills. The name Dakota is derived from a Sioux term meaning "friends" or "allies". It was first applied to a United States territory in 1861, and when North and South Dakota were formed, the people of both areas chose to keep the name. South Dakota is also known as the "Coyote State" and the "Sunshine State". Its major cities are Pierre (the capital), Sioux Falls, Rapid City, Aberdeen, Watertown, and Brookings.

Population: According to the 1990 census, South Dakota had 696,004 inhabitants, an increase of 0.8 per cent over 1980. The population estimate for 1997 was 737,973. The average population density in 1990 was 3.5 people per sq km (9 per sq mi). Whites made up 91.6 per cent of the population and blacks 0.5 per cent. In 1990, South Dakota had some 50,500 Native Americans; the Sioux formed the largest Native American group in the state. South Dakota also had 531 people of Filipino descent, 525 people of Korean ancestry, 385 people of Chinese origin, 287 Asian Indians, and 286 people of Japanese ancestry. Approximately 5,250 people were of Latino background.

Location: South Dakota, one of the Midwestern states of the United States, bordered on the north by North Dakota; on the east by Minnesota and Iowa; on the south by Nebraska; and on the west by Wyoming and Montana. The Missouri River forms part of the south-eastern boundary and the Red River forms part of the north-eastern boundary.

Area: South Dakota has an area of 199,742 sq km (77,121 sq mi); 5.5 per cent of the land area is owned by the federal government. The state is roughly rectangular in shape, and its extreme dimensions are about 395 km (245 mi) from north to south and about 610 km (379 mi) from east to west. Elevations range from 294 m (966 ft) at Big Stone Lake in the north-east to 2,207 m (7,242 ft) from the top of Harney Peak in the Black Hills. The approximate mean elevation is 671 m (2,200 ft).

Industries: The mining industry accounts for 1 per cent of the annual gross state product. One of the nation's largest gold mines, the Homestake, is located in Lead, in the Black Hills, and sand and gravel deposits are worked in all parts of the state. Other important minerals include uranium, copper, lead, silver, oil, lignite coal, granite, and quartzite.

Farming accounts for 13 per cent of the annual gross state product. Leading agricultural commodities include beef cattle, pigs, milk, sheep, and lambs. Crops account for 41 per cent of the annual agricultural income, the main crops being corn, wheat, and hay (alfalfa). South Dakota leads the nation in the production of oats and rye.

Forestry is a significant industry, producing wood for timber, pulp, and posts. The most important commercial species are Ponderosa pine and cottonwood.

Manufacturing accounts for 10 per cent of the annual gross state product. The leading industry is the manufacture of food products. Other major manufactures include industrial machinery, timber and wood products, electronic goods, metal items, precision instruments, and transport equipment. Printing and publishing are also important.
