Capital: Montpelier Time: GMT - 5

Background: Vermont entered the Union on March 4, 1791, as the 14th state (from 1777 to 1791 Vermont had been an independent republic). Its economy was chiefly agricultural until the 20th century, when manufacturing became the leading sector. Tourism and other services are also economically important, and the state is known for its many ski areas. Presidents Chester A. Arthur and Calvin Coolidge were born in Vermont. The name of the state is derived from the French words vert ("green") and mont ("mountain"), and Vermont is known as the "Green Mountain State". Its major cities are Montpelier (the capital), Burlington, Rutland, Essex, and Bennington.

Population: According to the 1990 census, Vermont had 562,758 inhabitants, an increase of 10 per cent over 1980. The population estimate for 1997 was 588,978. The average population density in 1990 was 23 people per sq km (59 per sq mi). Whites made up 98.6 per cent of the population and blacks 0.3 per cent. Additional population groups included 1,650 Native Americans, 679 people of Chinese origin, 563 people of Korean descent, and 529 people of Asian Indian ancestry; approximately 3,700 people were of Latino background.

Location: Vermont, one of the New England states of the United States, bordered on the north by the Canadian province of Quebec; on the east by New Hampshire; on the south by Massachusetts; and on the west by New York. The western bank of the Connecticut River forms the eastern boundary, and part of the western boundary runs through Lake Champlain.

Area: Vermont has an area of 24,903 sq km (9,615 sq mi); 6 per cent of its land area is owned by the federal government. The state is roughly triangular in shape, and its extreme dimensions are about 251 km (156 mi) from north to south and about 143 km (89 mi) from east to west. Elevations range from 29 m (95 ft), at Lake Champlain in the north-west, to 1,339 m (4,393 ft), at the top of Mount Mansfield in the north; the mean elevation is about 305 m (1,000 ft).

Industries: The state has a history of mining resources such as copper, tin, iron ore, silver, manganese, and gold. However, no metals have been mined here since the late 1950s, although there is still some significant production of non-metallic minerals such as asbestos, talc, marble, granite, slate, sand, and gravel.

Vermont's farming sector is comparatively small, but is an important part of the state economy. The most valuable agricultural commodity is milk; also important are cattle, eggs, hay, apples, and maple syrup.

There is a relatively small but locally significant forestry industry. The annual wood harvest is used mostly to make paper, furniture, and other prepared timber products. Manufacturing is a leading sector of the economy. Principal products include electronic equipment, industrial machinery, printed materials, paper and paper items, goods made of stone and wood, processed food, precision instruments, and aerospace and other transport equipment. Wood-burning stoves are an important manufactured item.
